(No. 10-17952)

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Two months after the close of evidence, and over a month and a half after closing 3 arguments, Moss Adams, LLP (“Moss Adams”) attempts to supplement the record with supposed 4 “evidence” that it could have introduced at the evidentiary hearing. But because this “evidence” 5 could have been introduced at the evidentiary hearing but was not, it is not “new” and cannot now 6 be considered by this Court. As this Court stated in In re Beck, “[m]atters that were not presented 7 in the first instance by a well-represented party are not considered on a motion for 8 reconsideration.” 12-13990, 2012 WL 4715863 at *2 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. Oct. 2, 2012) (citing 9 Aronson v. Dog Eat Dog Films, Inc., 738 F.Supp.2d 1104, 1118 (W.D. Wash. 2010)). Moreover, 10 Moss Adams attempted to admit certain of the “new” evidence at the hearing and the Court 11 properly denied the requests. Moss Adams has no basis upon which to disturb those rulings now.

12 More importantly, even if Moss Adams had introduced this new “evidence” at the 13 evidentiary hearing, it would not have changed the result. The “evidence” Moss Adams points to 14 is the supposed production of some – not all, but some – trial balances and loan ledgers, and the 15 Trustee’s alleged access to some trial balances from Meridian’s records. But, as the Court stated at 16 the hearing on the Trustee’s Motion for Fees, “there’s a lot more to this case than trial balances and 17 loan ledgers.” [5/17/12 Tr. at 34:22-35:4] Indeed, as this Court’s detailed decision makes clear, 18 this dispute centers on Moss Adams’ failure to produce all documents as required (not just trial 19 balances and loan ledgers) and the numerous ways in which Moss Adams failed to take all 20 reasonable steps to comply with the Subpoena and about Moss Adams’ misrepresentations to 21 counsel and the Court regarding its compliance. For that reason, for the additional and separate 22 reason that the “evidence” presented by Moss Adams is misleading, and for the other reasons 23 discussed herein, nothing about the “new” evidence affects the Court’s well-reasoned decision to 24 hold Moss Adams in contempt.

1 II. LEGAL STANDARD

2 “Motions for reconsideration are disfavored in this district.” In re Beck, 12-13990, 2012 3 WL 4715863 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. Oct. 2, 2012). Local Civil Rule 7(h)(1), made applicable in 4 Local Bankruptcy Rule 9013-1(h), provides the court should “ordinarily deny such motions in the 5 absence of a showing of manifest error in the prior ruling or a showing of new facts or legal 6 authority which could not have been brought to its attention earlier with reasonable diligence.” 7 (emphasis added).

8 “Local Rule 7(h) is the functional equivalent of a motion to alter or amend a judgment 9 under Fed.R.Civ.P. 59(e).” Beck, 2012 WL 4715863 at * 2 (citing Aronson v. Dog Eat Dog
10 Films, Inc., 738 F. Supp 2d 1104, 1118 (W.D. WA 2010); Fuller v. M.G. Jewelry, 950 F.2d 1437, 11 1442 (9th Cir.1991). Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 59(e), which applies here pursuant to 12 Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9023, allows a court to alter, amend or vacate a prior order.
13 Hamid v. Price Waterhouse, 51 F.3d 1411, 1415 (9th Cir.1994). However, Rule 59(e) is “an 14 extraordinary remedy, to be used sparingly in the interests of finality and conservation of judicial 15 resources.” Carroll v. Nakatani, 342 F.3d 934, 945 (9th Cir.2003); Kona Enters. v. Estate of 16 Bishop, 229 F.3d 877, 890–91 (9th Cir.2000). Motions under Rule 59(e) “should not be granted 17 absent highly unusual circumstances, unless the district court is presented with newly discovered 18 evidence, committed clear error, or if there is an intervening change in the controlling law.”
19 McDowell v. Calderon, 197 F.2d 1253, 1255 (9th Cir.1999).

20 Motions for reconsideration are properly denied where they merely present arguments 21 already raised in prior proceedings. Backlund v. Barnhart, 778 F.2d 1386, 1388 (9th Cir. 1985) 22 (“The motion was properly denied here because [] it presented no arguments that had not already 23 been raised in opposition to summary judgment.”); Fuller v. M.G. Jewelry, 950 F.2d 1437, 1442 24 (9th Cir. 1991) (motion for reconsideration properly denied because it “presented no arguments 25 which the court had not already considered and rejected”). Likewise, motions for reconsideration 26 “may not be used to raise arguments or present evidence for the first time when they could

3 4 III. ARGUMENT

5 A. THE COURT DID NOT COMMIT MANIFEST (OR ANY) LEGAL ERROR IN 6 HOLDING THAT MOSS ADAMS COULD BE HELD IN CONTEMPT ABSENT A 7 PRIOR COURT ORDER COMPELLING COMPLIANCE

8 1. The Court Correctly Found That The Subpoena Was A Court Order, The 9 Violation of Which Can Give Rise To Contempt

10 This Court previously considered and rejected Moss Adams’ repeated argument that the 11 Subpoena was not a court order, the violation of which can give rise to contempt. [Dk. No. 1051
12 at 17:1-20:19] Because the basis of Moss Adams’ argument that the Court committed manifest 13 legal error is nothing more than a reiteration of assertions previously made and rejected, Moss 14 Adams’ arguments of legal error are not appropriate argument to raise in this motion for 15 reconsideration.¹ Backlund, 778 F.2d at 1388; Fuller, 950 F.2d at 1442.

16 Even if the Court revisits Moss Adams’ argument, the Court’s Order rejecting Moss 17 Adams’ contention was correct and not based upon any legal error. As the Ninth Circuit 18 unambiguously stated in Pennewalt, cited by this Court at page 18 of its Decision, “a subpoena 19 duces tecum is itself a court order, and noncompliance may warrant contempt sanctions.” 708 20 F.2d at 494, n. 5.² Likewise, as recognized by this Court at page 20 of its Decision, “the text of 21 ¹ While Moss Adams argues the Court committed manifest legal error in holding that a prior court order compelling 22 compliance was unnecessary before holding it in contempt, Moss Adams has not presented any new legal authority 23 on that issue. Moss Adams continues to rely on In re App. of Kingdom of Morocco, 2009 WL 105786 (S.D. N.Y.

24 April 16, 2009) and Walkwer v. Asset Mktg. Ins. Svs., 2012 WL 827010 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 9, 2012). Neither of those 25 hold a prior court order compelling compliance is required, and neither involve a situation like the one here where, 26 among other things, Moss Adams did not object to the Subpoena and repeatedly told the Trustee and the Court that all documents had been produced when that representation was absolutely false.

² See also U.S. S.E.C. v. Hyatt, 621 F.3d 687, 693 (7th Cir. 2010) (“[W]e reject BCI’s argument that a subpoena issued under Rule 45(a)(3) by an attorney as an officer of the court is not itself a court order subject to contempt sanctions if disobeyed.”); 1991 Advisory Committee Note to Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 45(a) (“Although the subpoena is in a sense the command of the attorney who completes the form, defiance of a subpoena is nevertheless an act in defiance of a court order and exposes the defiant witness to contempt sanctions.”).

1 Rule 45, including the admonition concerning contempt, appears in full on the second page of the 2 Subpoena.” Accordingly, Moss Adams’ request for reconsideration on the grounds that the 3 Subpoena was not a Court Order must be rejected. The Court was correct in holding that the 4 Subpoena is a Court order, the violation of which can give rise to contempt, and the Court thus 5 did not commit any legal error, manifest or otherwise.

6 2. This Court Identified Numerous “Unique Facts” That Led It To Conclude 7 The Absence Of A Prior Order Compelling Compliance Was Not Necessary
8 To Hold Moss Adams In Contempt If Moss Adams Failed To Take All 9 Reasonable Steps To Comply

9 In that portion of its Decision rejecting Moss Adams’ argument that a prior court order 10 compelling compliance was necessary to hold Moss Adams in contempt, the Court identified 11 several “unique facts” which led it to conclude “the absence of an order to compel prior to the 12 entry of the order on December 26, 2012, does not prevent the Court from ordering sanctions if 13 Moss Adams failed to take all reasonable steps to comply.” [Dk. No. 1051 at 20:16-19.] Even 14 though “unique facts” were not legally required to support the Court’s holding on that issue 15 (because the Subpoena is itself a court order that can give rise to contempt), the Court nonetheless 16 correctly identified the follow “unique facts,” which made contempt appropriate here since the 17 court also found Moss Adams failed to take all reasonable steps to comply :

- 18 • “Moss Adams [] never objected to the Subpoena.” [Dk. No. 1051 at 19:1]
- 19 • “More importantly, Moss Adams and its counsel repeatedly assured the Trustee and 20 his counsel that all documents responsive to the Subpoena, including both 21 electronic and paper documents, had been produced, despite the fact that such 22 assurances were incorrect.” [Id. at 19:1-5]
- 23 • “As late as November 2, 2012, in response to the contempt motion, Moss Adams 24 stated that on August 23, 2010, it sent ‘two boxes of paper files to a copy vendor, 25 which copied the paper documents and coordinated delivery to the Trustee’ ...
26 [But] at trial Quirk was not able to testify as to when she sent the Lighthouse
Documents for copying and admitted that they had not been assembled as of August 23, 2010, so could not have been sent to K&L Gates at that time.” [Id. at 19:6-21]
- “[T]he information produced on the two discs in response to the Subpoena was not

1 produced in the same form as maintained by Moss Adams and [] the files were not 2 labeled or organized in any way to correspond to the document categories listed in 3 the Subpoena.” [Id. at 19:28-20:1]

4 Moss Adams’ argument that the Court committed manifest legal error by holding Moss Adams in 5 contempt without finding a violation of a court order compelling compliance ignores these 6 “unique facts” which led to the Court finding a prior court order compelling compliance was 7 unnecessary. For that reason alone, Moss Adams’ argument that the Court committed manifest 8 legal error has no merit.

9 3. Moss Adams’ Arguments About Whether The Trustee Had To Identify What 10 Was Missing From The Production And Whether He Suffered Prejudice Are 11 Irrelevant To The Court’s Contempt Finding And Are Wrong

12 Moss Adams confuses the issues which it argues that the Court committed manifest legal 13 error in finding Moss Adams could be held in contempt even absent a prior court order 14 compelling compliance. Specifically, Moss Adams purposely tries to shift the focus away from 15 the unique facts and instead raises on a red herring, namely (a) whether the Trustee knew trial 16 balances were missing from the production and (b) whether the Trustee suffered prejudice from 17 noncompliance. The Court’s Decision did not depend on either, as made clear by the above 18 “unique facts” unrelated to what the Trustee knew was missing and what prejudice he suffered.
19 Thus, even if one assumes, as Moss Adams suggests, that the Trustee knew trial balances were 20 missing and that he failed to inform Moss Adams of the same, that does not materially change
21 anything about the Court’s legal analysis nor does it change Moss Adams repeated noncompliance 22 with the Subpoena and failure to timely produce thousands of pages of critical work papers (i.e.
23 the Lighthouse documents). Simply put, trial balances and loan ledgers had nothing to do with 24 the “unique facts” that led the Court to hold a prior court order compelling compliance was 25 unnecessary.

26 i. The Trustee Was Not Required to Identify What Was Missing From The Production

As the Court has made abundantly clear on repeated occasions, a party responding to a

TRUSTEE’S OPPOSITION TO MOSS ADAMS LLP’S MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF THE COURT’S APRIL 5, 2013 MEMORANDUM DECISION (No. 10-17952) - 5	OSBORN MACHLER 2125 Fifth Avenue Seattle, WA 98121 206-441-4110

1 subpoena can be held in contempt even if the subpoenaing party did not identify missing 2 documents and did not suffer prejudice.³ For instance, the Court specifically held:

3 Moss Adams places great emphasis on the fact that it repeatedly asked the Trustee to 4 identify what he thought was missing from the production. The burden, however, is not 5 on the Trustee to sift through what has been produced (12,000 pages of documents 6 over two-and-a-half years) and try to predict what has been held back. It is the burden of the recipient of a Subpoena to comply fully with the terms of the Subpoena.
[Dk. No. 1051 at 19:23-28 (emphasis added)]

7 The Court also recently reaffirmed this position when it rejected Moss Adams' "failure to 8 mitigate" argument in connection with the Trustee's Motion for Fees, stating "it is not the 9 Trustee's obligation to determine what's missing from thousands of pages of documents, when it 10 is instead the obligation of the producing party to produce its documents." [5/17/13 Tr. at 35:8-11 12]

12 In addition, even though the Court also stated that "[g]iven the state of the information 13 produced, it was not even possible for the Trustee to ascertain what might be missing" [Dk. 1051
14 at 20:1-3] the Court's holding that a prior court order compelling compliance was unnecessary did 15 not depend in any way on that fact. Rather, as the Court has repeatedly made clear, the burden 16 was on Moss Adams to comply, not on the Trustee to tell Moss Adams what was missing from its 17 own production. Moreover, the Court's comment came in the context of the fact that Moss 18 Adams' failure to comply with Rule 45's requirement that documents be produced either as kept 19 in the ordinary course of business or labeled to correspond to a subpoena's document categories 20 made it more difficult to ascertain what was missing, which finding was absolutely correct.⁴

21 _____
22 ³ Even though the Trustee was not required to identify missing documents, the evidence demonstrated the Trustee's 23 counsel repeatedly told Moss Adams that the production did not include all responsive work papers and emails – i.e.
the Trustee did identify documents he believed were missing – namely emails and work papers. [See, e.g., Exhibit
D26]

24 ⁴ Moss Adams incorrectly claims, in footnote 4 of its brief, that the two discs of documents it produced in August 25 2010 were produced in the ordinary course of business. Mr. Kallander admitted the two discs did not contain folder 26 names or files names for the information on the discs, and thus the documents were obviously not produced as kept in the ordinary course of business. [2/14 Tr. (P.M.) at 75:2-12] While Moss Adams eventually produced an index of folder names, it never produced a list of file names, nor did it ever reproduce the documents electronically with folder and files names nor did it produce the documents with the PFX software so they could be reasonably read and

1 Thus, the issue of whether the Trustee knew what was missing from the production, and 2 informed Moss Adams of the same, has nothing to do with whether Moss Adams could be held in 3 contempt. Hence the supposed “facts” put forth by Moss Adams do not change the correctness of 4 the Court’s legal reasoning; the Court did not commit any legal error, manifest or otherwise.

5 ii. A Party May Be Held In Contempt Even If Prejudice Is Not Shown

6 Just as the Court correctly held Moss Adams could be held in contempt absent a prior 7 court order compelling compliance even if the Trustee did not identify for Moss Adams which 8 documents were missing from its production, the Court correctly held prejudice to the Trustee 9 was unnecessary for Moss Adams to be held in contempt. Contempt focuses on the conduct of 10 the responding party and ultimately turns on whether the responding party took “all reasonable 11 steps within [its] power to ensure compliance.” [Dk. No. 1051 at 17:11-19 (citing Stone v. City &
12 County of San Francisco, 968 F.2d 850, 856 (9th Cir. 1992)] Moss Adams has not, and cannot, 13 cite to any authority requiring that prejudice be suffered by the subpoenaing party before a 14 responding party can be held in contempt. Rather the prejudice issue comes into play only once a 15 party has been found in contempt and the Court is determining the appropriate sanctions to award 16 for that contempt. It is for this reason that the Court’s discussion of the prejudice suffered by the 17 Trustee came in the “Civil Sanctions” section of the Decision [Dk. No. 1051 at 22:13-24:22] and 18 not in the section of the Decision discussing Moss Adams’ failure to take all reasonable steps to 19 comply [Dk. No. 1051 at 20:20-21:12]. The Court recently reiterated this principle at the hearing 20 on the Trustee’s Motion for Fees, when it discussed prejudice suffered by the Trustee as a result 21 of missing loan balance and trial ledgers:

22 _____
23 Continued from the previous page
24 organized until years later after motion practice had begun. Thus, the evidence is undisputed that Moss Adams did 25 not produce the documents as kept in the ordinary course of business. While Moss Adams references a statement by 26 Mr. Avenatti at the December 7, 2012 hearing in this matter regarding how the documents were produced, that statement is quoted by Moss Adams out of context as the parties were discussing whether Moss Adams had to produce Exhibit “O” in native electronic form. Mr. Avenatti was referring to the fact that Moss Adams’ original production included production of documents in their native, electronic form (albeit without file and folder names).

--

OSBORN MACHLER 2125 Fifth Avenue Seattle, WA 98121 206-441-4110

1 [M]y current belief is that that relates more to whether Mr. Calvert is entitled to the 2 $50,000 in compensation he is seeking, than it matters to my ruling on contempt. Because 3 on contempt, the question is did Moss Adams use reasonable efforts to comply with the 4 subpoena. I found that it did not. And there are many factors that went into that.
5 [5/17/13 Tr. at 50:17-23 (emphasis added)]

6 Accordingly, Moss Adams' latest argument about whether the Trustee suffered prejudice
7 has no relevance to whether Moss Adams could be held in contempt absent a prior order 8 compelling compliance. The prejudice "issue" relates solely to the appropriate sanctions once a 9 party has been found in contempt. The Court thus did not commit manifest legal error when it 10 held a prior court order compelling compliance was unnecessary before holding Moss Adams in 11 contempt for its failure to take all reasonable steps to comply.

12 B. MOSS ADAMS HAS NOT PRESENTED ANY NEW FACTS THAT COULD NOT 13 HAVE BEEN BROUGHT TO THE COURT'S ATTENTION EARLIER WITH 14 REASONABLE DILIGENCE⁵

15 Moss Adams' Motion does not set forth any new "facts" that could not have been brought 16 to the Court's attention earlier with reasonable diligence. Rather, Moss Adams' Motion sets forth 17 "facts" that Moss Adams knew about at the time of the evidentiary hearing, or which Moss Adams 18 with reasonable diligence would have known about at the time of the evidentiary hearing.
19 Specifically, Moss Adams claims that (a) the discs it produced in August 2010 contained 20 "numerous trial balances and loan ledger information" from its PFX system and server files; and 21 (b) that the Trustee had access to loan ledger information and trial balances directly from 22 Meridian's files. However, even if true and even if admissible, the Court's ruling must stand.

23 1. Moss Adams Knew Or Should Have Known At Trial Whether It Produced 24 Any Trial Balances From Its PFX System And Server, But Failed To Present
25 Such Evidence

26 At the time of the evidentiary hearing Moss Adams knew, or with reasonable diligence

⁵ The Trustee objects to the declarations of Mr. Urquhart and Ms. LaRussa filed by Moss Adams in their entirety, on the grounds that they have been untimely submitted after the close of evidence and do not contain any "new facts." The matters alleged therein were known, or should with reasonable diligence have been known, to Moss Adams at the time of the hearing.

1 should have known, whether it produced “numerous trial balances and loan ledgers.”⁶ Moss 2 Adams called three witnesses -- Mr. Kallander (its general counsel), Ms. Quirk (the paralegal in 3 charge of the production) and Mr. Urquhart (the lead audit partner at Moss Adams for the Meridian 4 Funds) -- who were involved in Moss Adams’ production in August 2010. One of those three 5 Moss Adams’ witnesses certainly was, or should have been, familiar with the production and could 6 and should have come forward with such evidence to the extent it exists. Indeed, it is completely 7 disingenuous for Moss Adams to argue that “[i]f the Trustee had reviewed the PFX and server 8 documents, he would have found the trial balances he claims were missing” [Mot. at 7:13-15] and 9 at the same time claim it had no obligation to review its own production, know what was included 10 in its own production and bring such evidence to the attention of the Court. Moreover, as this 11 Court has repeatedly stated, “[t]he burden [] is not on the Trustee to sift through what has been 12 produced (12,000 pages of documents over two-and-a-half years) and try to predict what has been 13 held back.” Moss Adams continues to misunderstand this critical point.

14 In an effort to escape its clear lack of reasonable diligence, Moss Adams claims in its 15 Motion that trial balances and similar documents were not raised at the evidentiary hearing until 16 around 5:30 p.m.. [Mot. at 7:2-5] Moss Adams’ claim is false. The Trustee’s counsel specifically 17 questioned Mr. Kallander, starting at 2:17 p.m., about whether trial balances had been produced, 18 and Mr. Kallander testified he did not know whether any had been produced. [2/14/13 Tr. (P.M.)
19 at 38:25-40:9] Thereafter, Moss Adams further questioned Mr. Kallander on re-direct and then 20 proceeded to call and elicit testimony from Ms. Quirk and Mr. Urquhart. Moss Adams did not to 21 ask Mr. Kallander, Ms. Quirk or Mr. Urquhart a single question about whether Moss Adams’ 22 production included any trial balances or similar documents, even though Mr. Kallander had been 23 cross-examined on that topic. Moss Adams also called Ms. LaRussa, who supposedly printed out 24 Moss Adams’ entire production (and supposedly stacked it up on the side of the courtroom) and 25 ⁶ As will be discussed below, it is undisputed that Moss Adams did not timely produce all trial balances and loan 26 ledgers, because Moss Adams did not produce any hard copy work papers pre-dating adoption of the PFX system in 2004, all of which would have been in the “Lighthouse” documents, which were not produced until late 2012.

1 likewise failed to ask her a single question about whether the production included any trial 2 balances or loan ledgers.

3 Had Moss Adams been reasonably diligent, it would have (a) solicited testimony regarding 4 its production of any trial balances and loan ledgers; or (b) pre-marked as an exhibit a copy of the 5 discs it produced in August 2010, put a witness on the stand to lay the foundation for the 6 authenticity of the discs, and introduced the disc into evidence such that they could have been 7 referenced during closing arguments two weeks later.⁷ Moss Adams, however, failed to do so.

8 Thus, Moss Adams had ample opportunity to present evidence regarding whether it 9 produced any trial balances or loan ledgers from its PFX system/server, and the “new facts” it 10 seeks to present on that issue on reconsideration are “facts” that reasonable diligence required be 11 brought to the Court’s attention earlier.⁸

12 2. Moss Adams Knew Or Should Have Known At Trial Whether The Trustee
13 Likely Had Access To Trial Balances And Loan Ledgers From Meridian’s
14 Records

15 On the issue of the Trustee’s access to trial balances or loan ledgers directly from Meridian 16 records, Moss Adams has likewise not come forward with any “new facts” which could not have 17 been brought to its attention earlier with reasonable diligence.⁹

18 Moss Adams first points to a loan ledger documents from its own files which it claims were 19 prepared by Meridian and would have been part of Meridian’s records accessible to the Trustee.¹⁰
20 This argument lacks foundation, but in any event it could and should have been made by Moss

21 ⁷ Moss Adams made a belated attempt two weeks after the evidence was closed and on the eve of closing arguments, 22 to supplement the records with discs it claimed included its production. The Court properly rejected that request as 23 untimely and as lacking foundation regarding the authenticity of what was on the discs.

24 ⁸ This is the second time Moss Adams has tried to supplement the record with information regarding alleged 25 production of trial balances. It also did so on the eve of closing arguments (two weeks after the evidentiary hearing) 26 when it filed a Declaration of Scott Urquhart, which the Court properly refused to consider, and when it took the actions set forth in footnote 7 herein.

⁹ As set forth in more detail below, the Trustee never denied having access to some of Meridian’s records. Perhaps the Trustee’s testimony regarding access to Meridian’s records was inartfully worded, but it was accurate.

¹⁰ As discussed below, the records of Meridian that the Trustee had were not trustworthy and were inaccurate, which is no surprise seeing as Berg was running a Ponzi scheme. That is one reason the Trustee sought documents from Moss Adams.

1 Adams at the evidentiary hearing. Reasonable diligence required Moss Adams to be familiar with 2 its own production, and Moss Adams would obviously know that copies of documents it received 3 from Meridian might also be in Meridian’s files. Moreover, Moss Adams had full knowledge (or 4 should have had full knowledge) that the Trustee had access to at least some Meridian files. Moss
5 Adams pre-marked prior to the hearing its exhibit P12, which is a copy of the Power Point 6 presentation the Trustee gave to Investors in May in May 2011. Exhibit P12 was admitted into 7 evidence and clearly stated, on slide 24, that the Trustee had access to some Meridian records.
8 Slide 24 of Exhibit P12 also explicitly noted there were “Misrepresentations in Meridian’s 9 Records”, including (a) “‘fake’ loans booked,” (b) “Paid off or sold loans retained on records,” and 10 (c) “Inflated loan balances represented on records.” Thus, it was no secret that the Trustee had 11 access to some loan ledger type information, and Moss Adams knew or should have known of this 12 “fact” at the evidentiary hearing. Moss Adams nonetheless failed to raise this “fact” and thus 13 cannot offer it in support of a motion for reconsideration.

14 Second, Moss Adams offers two documents in an effort to show the alleged “new fact” that 15 the Trustee had access to Meridian’s Quickbooks:¹¹ (a) a page of the Trustee’s billing entries 16 related to exporting Quickbooks files for Funds II and V; and (b) the “FBI 302” notes of the 17 Trustee’s August 24, 2010 interview the FBI,¹² which the FBI agent drafted on August 31, 2010.
18 [Mot. at 9:10-10:1] That the Trustee had access to some Meridian Quickbooks, however, is not a 19 “new fact.” Exhibit P12, again at slide 24, clearly notes that the Trustee had encountered 20 misrepresentations in Meridian Quickbooks. Moss Adams could and should have brought this 21 “fact” to the Court’s attention earlier either at the evidentiary hearing or at closing arguments.
22 That is all the more so given that the billing entry offered by Moss Adams was part of exhibit P15 23 pre-marked by Moss Adams in advance of the evidentiary hearing. Because Moss Adams was 24 ¹¹ As discussed below, not all of Meridian’s books were kept on Quickbooks and Quickbooks did not provide loan 25 trial balance detail.

26 ¹² The FBI’s 302 notes are also hearsay and would not have been admissible if offered at the evidentiary hearing and cannot be considered now. To the extent the Court considers the LaRussa declaration (to which the Trustee objects), Plaintiff objects to consideration of the FBI 302.

1 able to pre-mark this exhibit, reasonable diligence required Moss Adams to bring the exhibit to the 2 Court's attention and offer it into evidence at the evidentiary hearing, which Moss Adams failed to 3 do. Accordingly, the Trustee's alleged access to Meridian Quickbooks is not a ground for 4 reconsideration as it is not a "new fact" that could not have been brought to the Court's attention 5 earlier with reasonable diligence.

6 C. THE ALLEGED "NEW FACTS" RAISED IN MOSS ADAMS' MOTION DO NOT 7 CHANGE THE COURT'S ANALYSIS THAT CONTEMPT WAS APPROPRIATE

8 Even assuming that the truth of the alleged "new facts" offered by Moss Adams, those 9 "new facts" do not in any way change the fact that Moss Adams failed to take all reasonable steps
10 to comply with the Subpoena, which is the legal standard for contempt. That is, the Trustee's 11 access (or lack thereof) to trial balances and loan ledgers had little or nothing to do with the 12 Court's ruling that Moss Adams failed to take all reasonable steps to comply. The Court 13 identified numerous facts which led to its decision to hold Moss Adams in contempt for failing to 14 take all reasonable steps to comply. Specifically:

- 15 • Moss Adams did not issue "any written notification and instruction to those who would be 16 required to preserve and assemble documents." [Dk. No. 1051 at 20:25-28]
- 17 • Mr. Kallander "left compliance with the Subpoena largely in the hands of a paralegal 18 despite knowing that Meridian and Berg were in the news." [Id. at 20:28-21:1]
- 19 • "Neither Mr. Kallander nor Ms. Quirk provided Mr. Urquhart with written instructions 20 even though Mr. Urquhart had never responded to a Subpoena." [Id. at 21:1-3]
- 21 • Ms. Quirk did not "check[] off the categories of information requested to confirm she had 22 covered everything. That simple process would have revealed that paper documents were 23 not ready for production at that time, that emails she saved in a separate folder were 24 omitted, and that billing records were required by the Subpoena which had not been 25 uploaded onto the discs or produced in hard copy format." [Id. at 21:7-12]
- 26 • "No effort was made by Ms. Quirk or anyone else at Moss Adams to preserve emails on the firm's Outlook server" even though "we know that relevant email exchanges were taking place at Moss Adams concerning Meridian shortly before issuance of the Subpoena" and now "[t]here is no way to know how many emails existed on this server when the Subpoena was served which have now been destroyed." [Id. at 21:13-24]

TRUSTEE'S OPPOSITION TO MOSS ADAMS LLP'S MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF THE COURT'S APRIL 5, 2013 MEMORANDUM DECISION (No. 10-17952) - 12	OSBORN MACHLER 2125 Fifth Avenue Seattle, WA 98121 206-441-4110
---	--

- 1 • “Moss Adams failed to deliver paper documents promptly to the Trustee in response to the 2 Subpoena” and even “assuming Ms. Quirk did in fact deliver paper documents to 3 Lighthouse (there is no evidence that she did), it was not reasonable to deliver these 4 documents ... to a third-party vendor with no written instructions of any kind to K&L
5 Gates that it should contact the vendor to obtain copies of the documents.” [Id. at 21:25-6 22:1]
- 7 • “Ms. Quirk admittedly failed to review the billing records to make sure that every Moss
8 Adams employee who worked on a Meridian or Berg matter was advised of the Subpoena 9 and of their individual responsibility to preserve and collect documents.” [Id. at 22:1-5]

7 As the foregoing makes clear, the focus of this case was not trial balances, and Moss Adams was 8 not held in contempt based on a finding it did not produce trial balances (even though it is 9 undisputed no trial balances were produced pre-dating adoption of the PFX system in 2004). In 10 fact, the Court made this very clear at the hearing on the Trustee’s Motion for Fees, stating:

11 I agree with what Mr. Avenatti said, that there's a lot more to this case than trial balances 12 and loan ledgers. And this case is about all of the documents that were produced after the 13 time that they should have been produced, including, without limitation, the Lighthouse 14 documents, the billing records, and the other documents I identified in my memorandum 15 decision.

14 [5/17/12 Tr. at 34:22-35:4]

15 Accordingly, even if the Court assumed the truth of and considered these “new facts,” the “new 16 facts” about some trial balances and loan ledgers allegedly being in Moss Adams’ production or 17 Meridian’s files do not in any way change the Court’s analysis or provides any grounds for 18 reconsidering the Court’s order.

19 D. MOSS ADAMS’ QUESTIONS ABOUT THE TRUSTEE’S CREDIBILITY ARE 20 UNJUSTIFIED

21 Throughout its Motion, Moss Adams erroneously questions the Trustee’s credibility.
22 Specifically, Moss Adams questions the credibility of the Trustee’s testimony regarding (a) Moss 23 Adams’ production of trial balances and loan ledgers and (b) the Trustee’s access to Meridian 24 records. Convicted felon Darren Berg also filed a declaration questioning the Trustee’s credibility

1 as it relates to Meridian’s records.¹³ Moss Adams and Berg’s arguments lack merit.

2 1. The Trustee’s Testimony Regarding Production Of Trial Balances And Loan
3 Ledgers By Moss Adams

4 At the evidentiary hearing, the Trustee testified as to certain examples of documents that 5 should have been produced but were not, including trial balances. [Declaration of Mark Calvert 6 (“Calvert Decl.”), ¶ 2.] For instance, Moss Adams did not produce the Lighthouse documents, 7 which contained the work papers for 1999 through approximately 2004 until late 2012. Indeed, 8 Moss Adams does not even claim it produced all trial balances; rather, Moss Adams carefully and 9 creatively instead claims it produced “numerous” trial balances. But the Trustee’s Subpoena did 10 not ask for “numerous” documents, it did not ask for “numerous” work papers, and it did not ask 11 for “numerous” trial balances and loan ledgers. Instead, it requested, and Moss Adams was 12 required to, produce ALL responsive documents. Moss Adams and Mr. Urquhart fail to address 13 this glaring deficiency because they simply are unable to.

14 These examples offered by the Trustee were not meant in any way to be an exhaustive list 15 of the numerous types of documents Moss Adams failed to produce – they were merely meant to 16 be examples. [Calvert Decl., ¶ 2] Had the Trustee meant his testimony to provide an exhaustive 17 list, the Trustee would have testified to a number of additional individual work papers and emails 18 Moss Adams failed to timely produce but later produced after motion practice began (i.e. the 19 Lighthouse documents). [Id.] Importantly, it has never been the Trustee’s obligation to inform 20 Moss Adams of every document the firm failed to timely produce nor would the Trustee 21 necessarily have the requisite knowledge to determine every document Moss Adams failed to 22 produce because they were Moss Adams’ documents. [Id.]

23 The Trustee’s review of the work papers produced by Moss Adams was severely hampered 24 by the method in which Moss Adams produced the documents and the fact that they were not

25 ¹³ The Trustee objects to Mr. Berg’s submission and requests that it be stricken, on the grounds that Mr. Berg’s filing 26 was unauthorized and that Mr. Berg had full notice of the contempt hearing and failed to timely file any papers at that time. Accordingly, he cannot now attempt to introduce “evidence” months after the hearing.

1 produced as kept in the ordinary course of business. [Calvert Decl., ¶ 3] Despite this fact, since 2 the hearing on February 14, 2013, the Trustee had had occasion to again review Moss Adams’ 3 production of documents in August 2010. [Id.] Following this review, the Trustee concluded the 4 following: (1) Moss Adams did produce some, but certainly not all, of the trial balances and loan 5 ledgers in August 2010 and (2) Moss Adams’ did not produce all documents and work papers they 6 were required to produce in August 2010, including all trial balances and loan ledgers, and this 7 hampered my efforts as Trustee. By trial balances the Trustee means all types of trial balances
8 (including but not limited to work trial balances, loan trial balances, REO trial balances, investor 9 trial balances, and all subsidiary trial balances) for all of the relevant funds for all relevant years.
10 [Id.]

11 2. The Trustee’s Testimony Regarding His Access To Meridian’s Records

12 Contrary to Moss Adams’ assertions, the Trustee did not testify at the evidentiary hearing 13 that he did not have any access to any of Meridian’s records. The Trustee testified at various 14 times about access he did have to Meridian’s records, including as to the lack of reliable 15 accounting records within those records. Moss Adams nonetheless takes out of context testimony 16 by the Trustee regarding the records of Meridian. Seeing as the Trustee testified about having 17 records of Meridian, he did not mean to convey that he did not have any of Meridian’s books, but 18 rather meant to convey he did not have all of Meridian’s books and supporting records. [Calvert 19 Decl., ¶ 4] And, as to those records the Trustee did have, he quickly determined that such 20 records,¹⁴ and especially Meridian’s electronically stored information (“ESI”) had major 21 problems. [Id.] For example, (a) there were errors in the data; (b) the files were incomplete; (c) 22 not all the information was stored in one place; (d) there were different versions of the same 23 document with different numbers; and (e) some early files were missing that were needed to show 24

25 ¹⁴ Contrary to the assertions of Mr. Berg, Meridian did not operate a paperless office. [Calvert Decl., ¶ 4] Four to 26 five pallets of Meridian paper documents were seized by the FBI, and a significant amount of information was not stored electronically. [Id.]

---	--

1 the flow of funds. [Id.] Thus, in short, Meridian’s records did not have all the documents the 2 Trustee needed, including all necessary trial balances, and even if a document existed on 3 Meridian’s servers,¹⁵ that did not mean the document was accurate or that the document tied to the 4 audited financial statements. [Id.]

5 3. The Importance Of Moss Adams’ Work Papers Given The Unreliability Of 6 Meridian’s Records

7 Because Meridian’s electronically stored information (“ESI”) information was incomplete 8 and would not tie to the audited financial statements, the trustee sought all work papers, including 9 all trial balances and loan ledgers, from Moss Adams. [Calvert Decl., ¶ 6] Specifically, as a result 10 of the problems with Meridian’s ESI, the Trustee determined that a complete set of Moss Adams’ 11 work papers would provide a focal point to start his forensic analysis and that such documents 12 from Moss Adams would help show the reliability (or lack therefor) of the ESI and hard copy 13 records of Meridian. [Id.] That is, the Trustee decided the best place to start unraveling the 14 puzzle was with the audited financial statements, tying those back to the trial balances in Moss
15 Adams’ possession supporting the financial statements, tying those back to the working trial 16 balances, tying those back to the source documents, etc. [Id.] Specifically, the Trustee’s original 17 plan was to take each year’s audit, prove the fraud existed in that year’s balance sheet and 18 document the insolvency at the end each year, then roll forward the balance sheet each year, 19 carrying forward the fraud which was proven in prior years and document the new fraud each year.
20 [Id.] However, Moss Adams failure to produce all work papers for every year starting with 1999 21 (i.e. starting with the Lighthouse documents) made this impossible. It was for this reason that the 22 Trustee reverted to a cash in and cash out analysis using bank statements. [Id.]

25 ¹⁵ With regard to Meridian’s Quickbooks in particular, not all of Meridian’s books were kept on Quickbooks and 26 Meridian’s Quickbooks did not include loan trial balance detail. [Calvert Decl., ¶ 5] While there was a balance in Quickbooks for loans receivable, the Trustee was looking for the detail that tied to the financial statements so that he could confirm the loan was paid off. [Id.]

1 E. THE EVIDENCE IS CLOSED AND DUE PROCESS DOES NOT REQUIRE THAT 2 THE COURT REOPEN THE EVIDENCE

3 “Due process” does not provide a ground for Moss Adams to reopen the evidence and 4 present additional evidence to the Court. That is the case for at least two reasons. First, if this 5 Court were going to consider the “evidence” presented by Moss Adams, it would have to reopen 6 the evidence such that the Trustee could respond, which would run contrary to the important 7 policy regarding the finality of proceedings. Doing so is unnecessary, unjust and not required.
8 Second, Moss Adams’ argument is based on its false assertion that trial balances did not come up 9 until after 5:00 p.m. on the date of the evidentiary hearing. As noted above, at 2:17 p.m. the 10 Trustee’s counsel questioned Mr. Kallander regarding whether Moss Adams had produced any 11 trial balances. Prior to the hearing, the Trustee also repeatedly asserted that not all work papers 12 had been produced. Trial balances are part of the work papers. Despite both of these facts, at no 13 point in time did Moss Adams’ counsel solicit testimony from Mr. Kallander, Ms. Quirk or Mr.
14 Urquhart that some trial balances were produced, nor did Moss Adams’ counsel undertake other 15 efforts to argue that some trial balances had in fact been produced. Due process does not provide 16 an avenue for Moss Adams to change that decision or fix that failure now.

17 Moss Adams’ reliance on In re Peters, 642 F.3d 381 (2011) is completely misplaced.
18 Unlike in In re Peters, Moss Adams had notice of the charges against it (i.e. that it did not take all 19 reasonable steps to comply). Moss Adams also had notice that the Trustee asserted not all work 20 papers had been produced. Moss Adams also called multiple witnesses to the stand after Mr.
21 Kallander was questioned regarding trial balances, and failed to solicit testimony from any of 22 them regarding production of any trial balances or what exactly the production included. Thus, 23 unlike the party in In re Peters that did not have adequate notice of the disciplinary charges 24 against her and “ran out of time” at trial to address new charges against her, Moss Adams had full 25 notice of the charges against it, had a full day to prove it took all reasonable steps to comply, and 26 did not “run out of time” to introduce testimony regarding production of trial balances. Rather,

1 Moss Adams failed to do so despite multiple opportunities, choosing instead to solicit testimony 2 from witnesses on other topics.

3 IV. CONCLUSION

4 For the foregoing reasons, the Trustee respectfully requests that this Court deny Moss 5 Adams' Motion for Reconsideration. The Trustee also requests such other and further relief as the 6 Court deems just and proper.
